

From my wife and her attorney's initial paperwork for the divorce:

VERIFIED PETITION FOR DISSOLUTION

VERIFIED MOTION FOR TEMPORARY ORDERS

2. Petitioner, at this time, has insufficient income to support herself or to assume any or all of the debts of the parties, and/or to bear the costs of this action.

4. Petitioner will file and make a part of the record of this proceeding, her Affidavit With Respect to Financial Affairs, which reflects her monthly deficit.

Additionally, Respondent was previously employed as an estimator/contractor for _____, Inc., with monthly gross income of $15,000.00 per month.

7. The Petitioner has been the primary care giver and decision maker for the parties' minor children.

("Verified" motions are always signed under penalty of perjury. Before the divorce, I was the primary care giver and decision maker, and I was semi-retired with an annual income of about $24,000.00 and paying most of the bills. My wife, as her attorney knew full well, did not have a monthly deficit and could more than afford the costs of her long-awaited divorce.)
